

Abg. Tcnel. Ender Oswaldo Portillo Paez
Comprehensive Defense Strategic Region (REDILL) Venezuela
Email: oswaldoportillo69@gmail.com
ORCID Code: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-1492-6600>

How to cite this article: Ender Oswaldo Portillo Páez (2021), "Human Dignity and Human Rights in a Time of Pandemic" (1-14)
Received: April 2021
Accepted: May 2021

Human Dignity and Human Rights In Time of Pandemic

ABSTRACT

An investigation is presented that had the purpose of generating a theoretical reflection on Human Dignity and Human Rights in a Time of Pandemic, collecting evidence on what has been the impact of fundamental Human Rights that sustain the survival and basic well-being of the human being. Having its methodological foundation, under a qualitative approach with a documentary design, descriptive field, assuming the hermeneutical method as a tool for the interpretation of primary sources such as: documentary observation, summary of texts, opinion articles, in-depth reading and more advanced, the analytical summary. Critical analysis was also used to give coherence to the ideas presented. And where the right to life, health, human dignity and an adequate standard of living are being difficult to predict, due to the way the virus has been evolving and for which reason, it is necessary to be prepared to live and to live with him, also alluding that this new virus could become an endemic disease like the case of (AIDS) and that it will not disappear, for which it has finally begun to speak recently of a meaning or a new conception of "Syndemia", thus proposing some reflections, councils that help mitigate its consequences that are experienced at the present time and that constitutes a threat never before seen and that negatively underpins the disappearance of the human species.

Descriptors: Human dignity, Pandemic, Syndemic, wellnes, Human Rights.

Biographical Review: Abg. Tcnel. Ender Oswaldo Portillo Páez. Asesor jurídico of the Los Llanos Comprehensive Defense Strategic Region (REDILL) San Juan de los Morros, edo. Guarico. PhD in International Human Rights Law from ULAC.