The Situational Room as Social Innovation in Community Development..

ABSTRACT

The Situational Room, a strategy promoted by the State, developed a new organizational vision in all Institutional entities, however, new problems were generated affecting the communities, the dynamics changed and the situational rooms in Venezuela ended up fulfilling a political purpose. A new vision emerges with community development, with theories that contribute to experience, participation, commitment, empowerment and the scope of significant changes in the community. Fals Borda 1981, Selener 1997. With the general objective, to develop a methodological strategy for the situational room as a social innovation in community development in the community of Santa Rosa II of the Andrés Eloy Blanco Parish of the Girardot Municipality, Aragua state, several empirical methods such as observation and survey to identify the current problem, applying theoretical methods such as analysis-synthesis, generating as results the lack of organization in the community, the apathy for participation, the initiative was to develop a strategic plan that pays tribute to the planning, development and evaluation designed to strengthen the organization, with a qualitatively oriented methodology where it allows reflexively to produce knowledge through practice, generating improvements in social transformations, all under the conception of participatory action research, with The new transformative vision with positive changes in terms of environmental analysis and decision making, in essence, is to respond to needs, reduce problems, threats and weaknesses, managing solutions for the benefits of the entire community.
