The Public Management of Venezuela In The 20th-21st Century

ABSTRACT

The topic to be addressed is complex due to the aspects to be considered, among which we have: public policies - public administration - public management, in a stage of reflection with the intention of enriching the information within the framework of constructive criticism, where the genuine state representative of the nation - country, has the duty and obligation to administer with equity - effectiveness - efficiency, to guarantee the honesty, honorability and anti-corruption of officials who hold public positions. The research of theorists on the topic will be reviewed with the intention of enriching, generating and proposing possible contributions that minimize the stated topic. The study of public policies - public administration - public management, today is in a stage of review and reflection that will try to guarantee the quality and vision of the ideal service to users in search of maximum efficiency. To achieve these objectives, it is necessary to renew, transform and adapt public policies - public administration - public management according to the demanding imperative of the current moment. Now, the dilemma remains present and latent in those of us who believe in utopia and what is the reality evidenced in the passage of the application of the country's plans, in the face of the future that lies ahead. That is to say, the following paradigm can be blurred: Public policies are to public management as this is to public administration within the framework of a political state expressed through the exercise of power.

Descriptors: Public Management, Public Administration, Public Policies, efficiency, effectiveness, state.
